WALLACE F. JOHNSON MEETS NAT W. NILES

Philadelphia Plays Brilliant Lawn Tennis at Longwood, Eliminating Dick Harte in Spectacular Five-Set Match—Several Upsets at Boston

Boston, Mass., July 22.—Wallace F. Johnson, of Philadelphia, met N. W. Niles, former Massachusetts state singles champion, in the fifth round of play in the Longwood bowl tournament at the Chestnut Hill courts this afternoon.

Johnson and Harte provided more tennis of a high quality in their match than it has been since the season. Harte started out as though to make short work of the Philadelphia player, winning the first set in handily fashion, six-sets to three.

MAY SHIFT RACE STARTING POINT

Committee Determined That Cup Tilt Tomorrow Shall Be Real Yachting Test

COURSE IS TRIANGULAR

By LAWRENCE PERRY

Shamrock is at a shipyard in Staten Island today undergoing repairs. It is believed will enable her to slide a bit more swiftly through the water tomorrow, when the fourth race of the American Cup series will be sailed against the American defender Resolute.

It will be a very interesting problem. Assuming winds are light, which is likely to be the case, the defender will probably gain an hour, can she gain enough time on Shamrock in a windward leg of ten miles to offset the challenger's established superiority of perhaps five or six minutes in sailing with the wind over her beam and nearly two minutes in going free before the wind?

Possible Change One may be sure that the New York Yacht Club regatta committee will not again be so circumspect as to postpone two races and a run as it did last Saturday. That course was meant for the challenger and dearly won prize money.

Given such a course the outcome of the race is likely to be the closest sort of a proposition. For yesterday Shamrock showed that with a proper wind finder on board she is not so badly off in pointing as appeared in previous races. All in all the holders of the trophy, while not justified in giving the trophy a preliminary farewell kiss, are entitled to emotions of some apprehension.

Again, there is always the chance that Shamrock will improve to windward. A slipper breeze that in this sort of sailing can learn something from a new boat every day and net results see him better able to sail and nurse his craft in a manner fitted to produce constantly in previous races. Suppose by tomorrow Mr. Burton were able to sail his challenger with a minute of Resolute on a three to windward; in fact, Resolute would have her work cut out to save her time on other legs.

Difficult for Resolute Personally, though, I think she could succeed in doing this, provided conditions are about as they have been to date. If so, will consider that last leg of yesterday's race you will note that in a run of fifteen miles, with a wind blowing from ten to twelve knots, Shamrock, with a much greater area of canvas, was seriously put to it to pass the defender, and, in fact, succeeded in doing so only nineteen seconds before the finish of the race.

In other words, the defender held the more powerful challenger boat for about thirty miles. True, fifteen of those miles lay to windward, but fifteen miles also lay to leeward.

All of which suggests to me that Shamrock may prove unable to give her time in any race that involves at least one leg to leeward.

August Rammi Forced to Leave Eight-Oared Shell Because of Boils

Worcester, Mass., July 22.—A possible question in connection with the selection of America's rowing representatives at the Antwerp Olympics was obviated today by the announcement that August Rammi, stroke of the Syracuse University eight-oared crew, had been forced to leave the shell because of boils.

The giant stroke oar was involved in a question of citizenship, to clear which it had been planned to appeal to Washington in the event that Syracuse won. The Syracuse eight is one of six crews entered for the senior eight race in the annual championship regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, to be held on Lake Quinsigamond tomorrow and Saturday.

The loss of Rammi will not seriously affect Syracuse's chances, Coach Ten Eyck said. He moved Alvin Laskamp from No. 6 to stroke position and brought into the boat Harold Clark, stroke of the Syracuse freshman crew.

Nearly all the crews and individual scullers entered for the two-day regatta were on the lake for trial spins over the mile and one-quarter course today. They include oarsmen from Philadelphia, Detroit, New York, Washington, D. C., Halifax, N. S., Boston and Springfield.

The Reds Cop Another Tulpehocken Reds defeated Collinswood, 10 to 1, running their total to nine wins out of the past ten starts. Plant's superb pitching and the defense of George R. Boyer, Hank and Conroy caused the undoing of the home club. The Reds will play the Athletics in August open. Write, phone or wire, Semipino home clubs only. P. Tigers Sign a Busher Greenbay, Wis., July 22.—R. Milton Wilson, of this city, has signed a contract for the season with the Detroit Americans. He was announced today. He is a member of the Two Rivers, Lake Shore League team.

EXPERIENCE ABROAD BIG HELP TO BARNES

Playing With the Best of Them in British Championship Added the Missing Link to American Champion's Game

Shawnee, Pa., July 22.—Jim Barnes made a deep impression in the Shawnee open golf tourney which he won for the second time with a score of 287, six strokes ahead of the field.

His brother pros, veteran golfers all, who were here, stated continuously that they did not see how Barnes could be beaten here this year by his fellow Americans. They base this partly on the fact that a new confidence has been born in the ex-Whitmarsh pro. They believe that his experience abroad will prove invaluable.

"You always think the tails of the monkeys somewhere else are a little longer than those you have seen," was the way one of the pros put it. "But when you find they're all alike, there is nothing more to worry about."

Barnes played his shots with the Britons, whose native heath is the home of golf tradition, "greatest players in the world," and all the rest of it. He matched his golf with the best of them and finished fifth. Under the conditions, Barnes said to himself, "I'm hawkeye."

The critic contingent is satisfied that the extra experience abroad will add the "missing link" to Barnes's game. They admit he has the best shots of any player in America.

But they have always said of Barnes that he has not had the "punch" to come through when he is behind. "Give him a good start and no one can catch him," they said. "But let him begin a slump and he can't break out of it."

They figure now that this will no longer hold true, that he will go from start to finish with new-found confidence. Barnes himself discussed his alleged weakness some length in the midst of dashing off postcards here last night.

"I never had a feeling that if I started poorly I would be bad to the end," he said. "I go in to play the best I can right to the end. I think, however, my experience abroad was valuable. Live and learn is my motto."

Playing with Ray in the final round here yesterday, Barnes was five strokes up at the first tee. When they reached the fifth he had lost four and was only one stroke to the good, but the tall pro only gave the inevitable clover blossom strokes back. At the finish he had added another to the credit side.

"That's the difference," said the pros. "After that bad start he would have started with a twist and got those strokes back. Now he has a new note in his game."

Pleased to Run Barnes was as pleased as ever with Shawnee, a course he has always admired. "Gee, I wish we had weather like this on the other side," he said.

SCRAPS ABOUT SCRAPPERS

Forty rounds of boxing are scheduled tonight at the Germantown A. A., including five eight-round bouts, while another fistie feature here this evening is the entrance of Sam McCracken into the local field as a proponent.

Doctor Phelan announced Johnny Kruse as being in tip-top form this morning for his eight-rounder against Tim Brown, of Lancaster, at the Germantown Club. In the semifinals which Frankie Farmer will meet Eddie Morgan. The other three bouts are Martin Judo vs. Hank Medvetz, Roundy Donato vs. Young Tom Sharkey and Danny Rodgers vs. Frankie Coster.

Joe Wright's meeting with Joe Nelson of the Madison Park will be a return match. They recently met at the Auditorium. Bobby Barrett vs. Lew Baker will be the semi. Other matches: Charley Thomas vs. Kid Cottman, Whitey Burke vs. Joe Taber and Tommy Avers and Johnny Hanlon.

Tommy McCann, of Germantown, is a promising fighter. He goes on in one of the prelims at the Cambria tomorrow night with Pete Ross as his vis-a-vis. The star set-to will be Johnny Hanlon vs. Puncy Lee, with the remainder of the program as follows: Harry Zine vs. Jack Devlin, Kay vs. Griffo vs. Joe Sweeney and Red Ford vs. Frankie Smith.

George Mack is plugging Bobby Michaels a New Jersey boxer, as the best bet in the featherweight division, and he wants to prove it to local fans. Mack believes that a bout between Michaels and Harry (Kid) Brown would bring out the real worth of the Jerseyite.

Marlin Burke, of New Orleans, is said to have passed up his bout with Gene Tunney, but is being brought to Philadelphia for a fight in which he will match either Charley Tompkins or Johnny Hanlon.

Yardon and Ray are both impressed by Barnes's game, though they won't discuss it, as their opinions are already bought and paid for. "Fine game, congratulations and good luck," Ray said to Barnes, as they shook hands at the eighteenth.

Just to show what the gallery thought of the game of these two masters of the links, here's one for the book: A macadam road runs parallel with the seventeenth fairway. Barnes had the honor. He pulled a flighty drive which hit the road twice. In great leaps the ball bounced off finally to the middle of the fairway, fifty yards more length than he would usually have gotten.

"Barnes played for that road," one fan assured everybody. "He knew he could get more distance. Gee, he's some player, isn't he?"

Ray stepped up. "Watch him try the same shot on the next hole. Sure enough Ray did, but his ball took the leaf fatal and bounded half-way up the mountain, out of bounds."

English Stars Impressed Barnes and Ray are both impressed by Barnes's game, though they won't discuss it, as their opinions are already bought and paid for.
